OUR BICENTENNIAL MOMENT

The sights and sounds of 1776 were silent, but memories came alive as towns all across the United States celebrated the birth of a nation 200 years later. Parades marched down the streets, people wore costumes, "Old Glory" flew, towns erected statues, and festivals pervaded for no one allowed the year to pass without remembering. Like many of the small towns across the United States, the community of Franklin also joined in the celebration as they said . . .

"HAPPY BIRTHDAY, AMERICA!"

No Strings . . . Freedom . . .

High School! What did our parents call it? Oh, yeah, the best times of our lives. My idea of fun wasn't exactly spending nine months sitting in a cramped desk and studying, but I guess it wasn't all that bad. I met friends that I'll keep forever and have enough souvenirs to fill a dozen scrapbooks. I'll never forget the memories that could have only happened at FCHS . . . forgetting about homework in order to cheer at volleyball games . . . dodging buckets in the hall on a rainy day . . . joining in the "Grizzly Cub Hop" around the annual bonfire . . . spending a spring day in a class that was 55 minutes too long . . . shedding a few tears of joy after being crowned Homecoming queen . . . trading gossip in the cafeteria . . . dancing and drinking punch on an "Indian Summer" night . . . driving a car to school, parking in the lot, and walking a mile to the front door . . . saluting the flag as "The Star Spangled Banner" filled Shireman Field . . . setting the record for sharing a locker with 5 other people . . . imitating "Kiss" to celebrate Halloween . . . and waiting for a bus on a cold morning with blue toes and a red nose.

. . . Living For The Moment . . .

These memories were only a part of life in 1976 . . . No, they were "LIVING FOR THE MOMENT" at FCHS.

RIGHT—A brief serenade is sung to Kathy Ladd from a one-time visit by Free Fare.

BELOW—"Woodietta" Atwood and "Carrie" Anderson don skirts for the Homecoming pep session. Next day it was back to blue jeans.

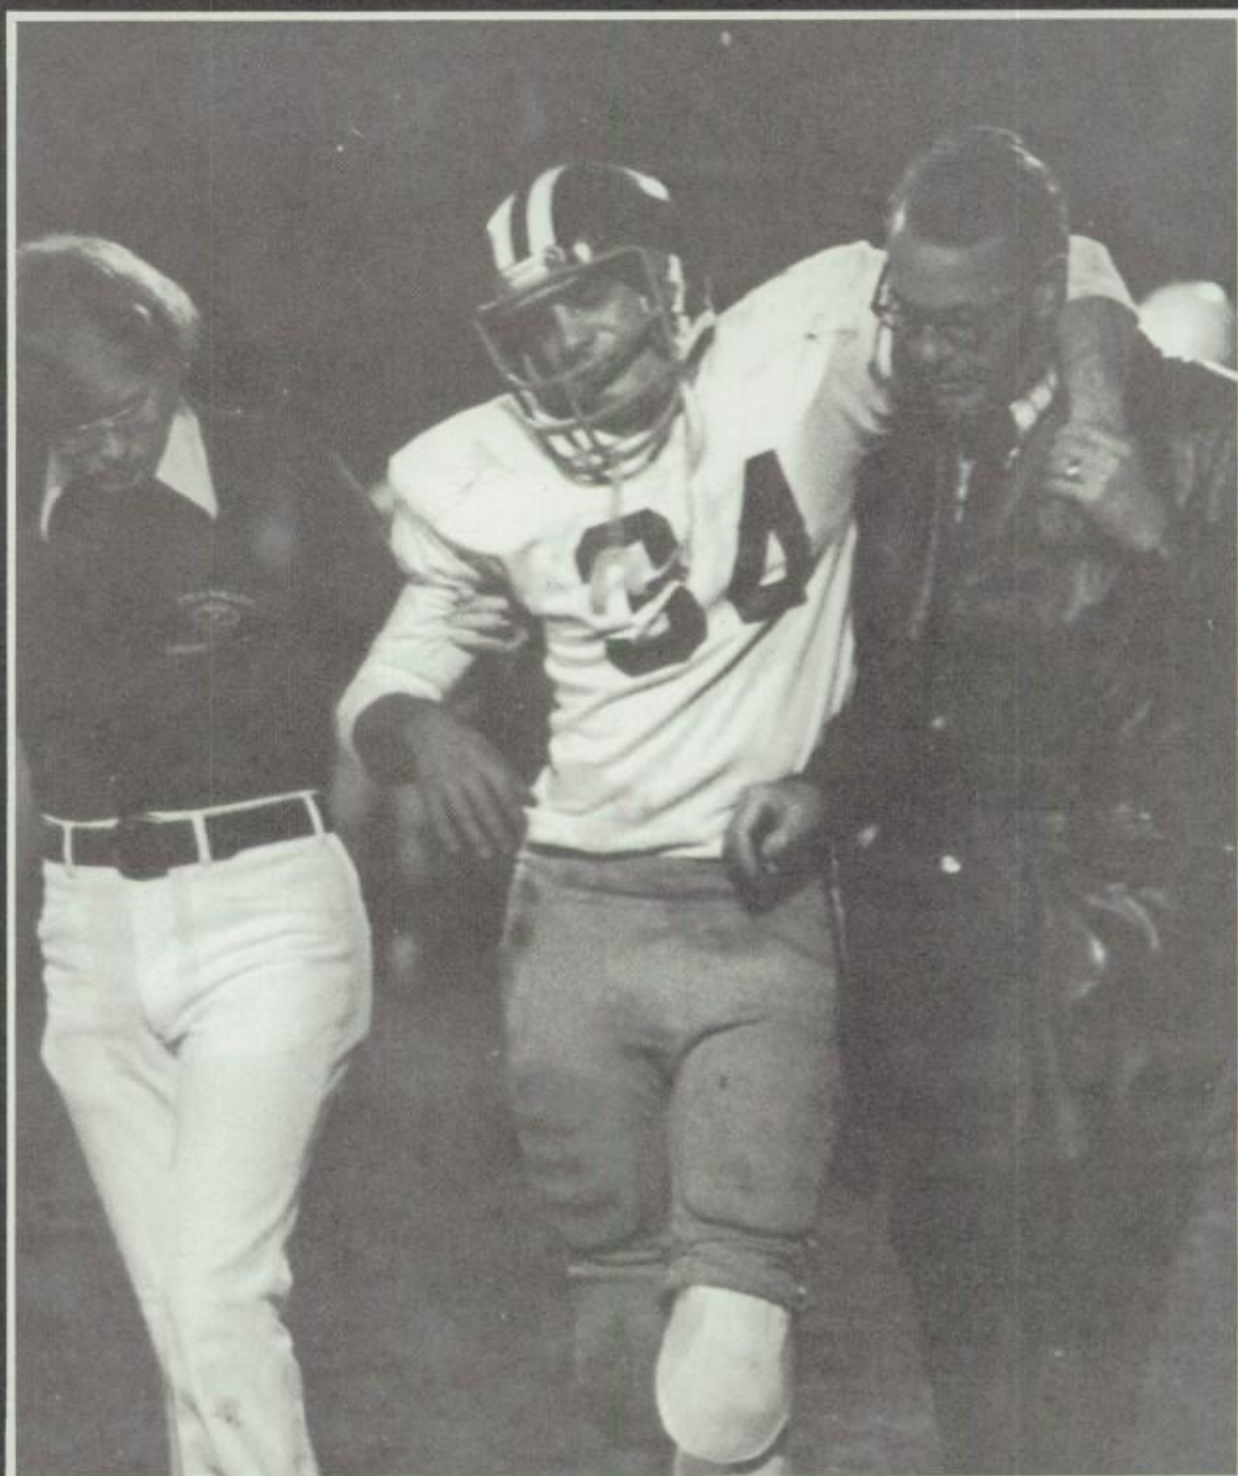

No Strings Means Soaring . . .

ABOVE—A chance in a lifetime for Kevin Perkins to "cream" Coach Trueblood in a pep session skit.

RIGHT—The pain of an injury soon disappears as quickly as the agony of defeat.

. . . Soaring Higher And Higher

ABOVE—With a shot from the starter's pistol, cross country runners start on the first leg of their race against Greenwood.

CENTER LEFT—Not only are the Grizzly Cubs "Number 1" to these senior boys, but these two tied for "Mr. Ugly FCHS."

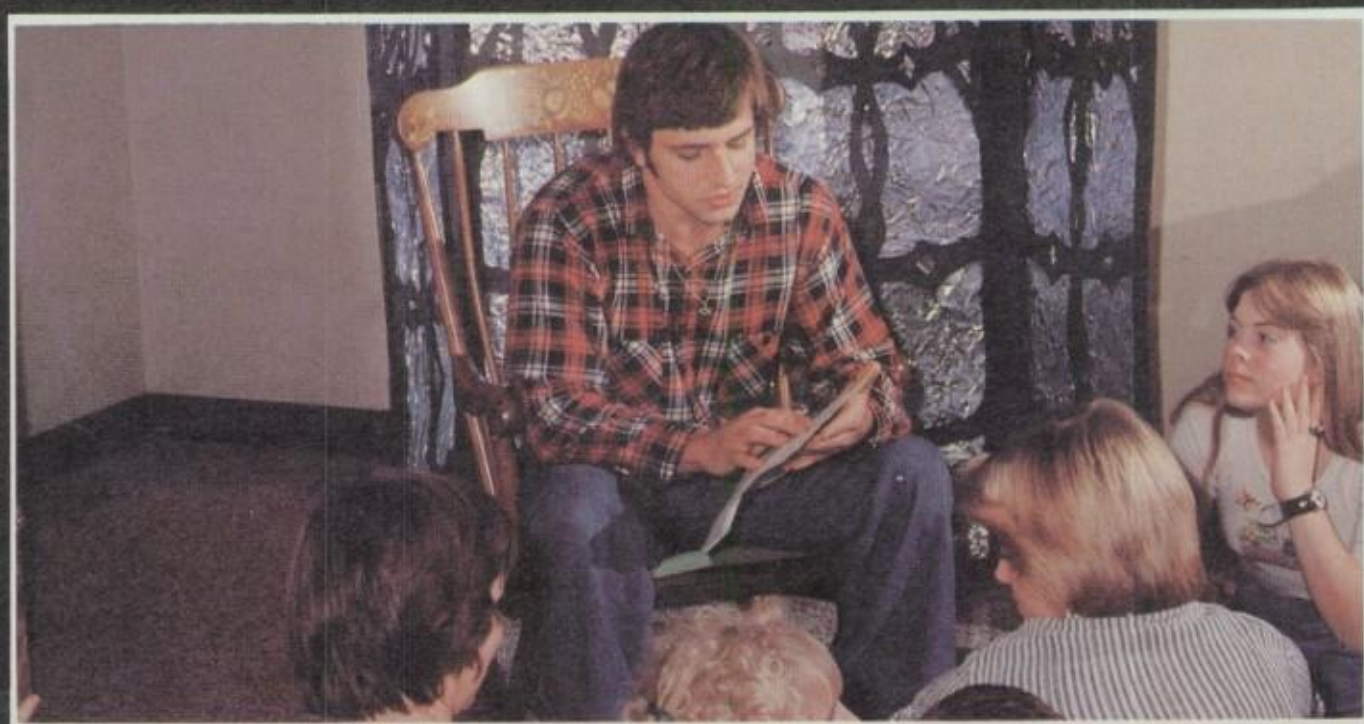

LEFT—After a long hard day, it's nice to know that there's always an empty spot in studyhall to take a "cat nap."

Soaring Together With . . .

ABOVE—The Franklin Grizzlies "burned" the Seymour Owls both on and off the football field during the 1975 Homecoming.

CENTER RIGHT—The Christmas spirit is alive and well as Mark Stevenson portrays the jolly old man himself.

. . . Nothing To Tie Us Down . . .

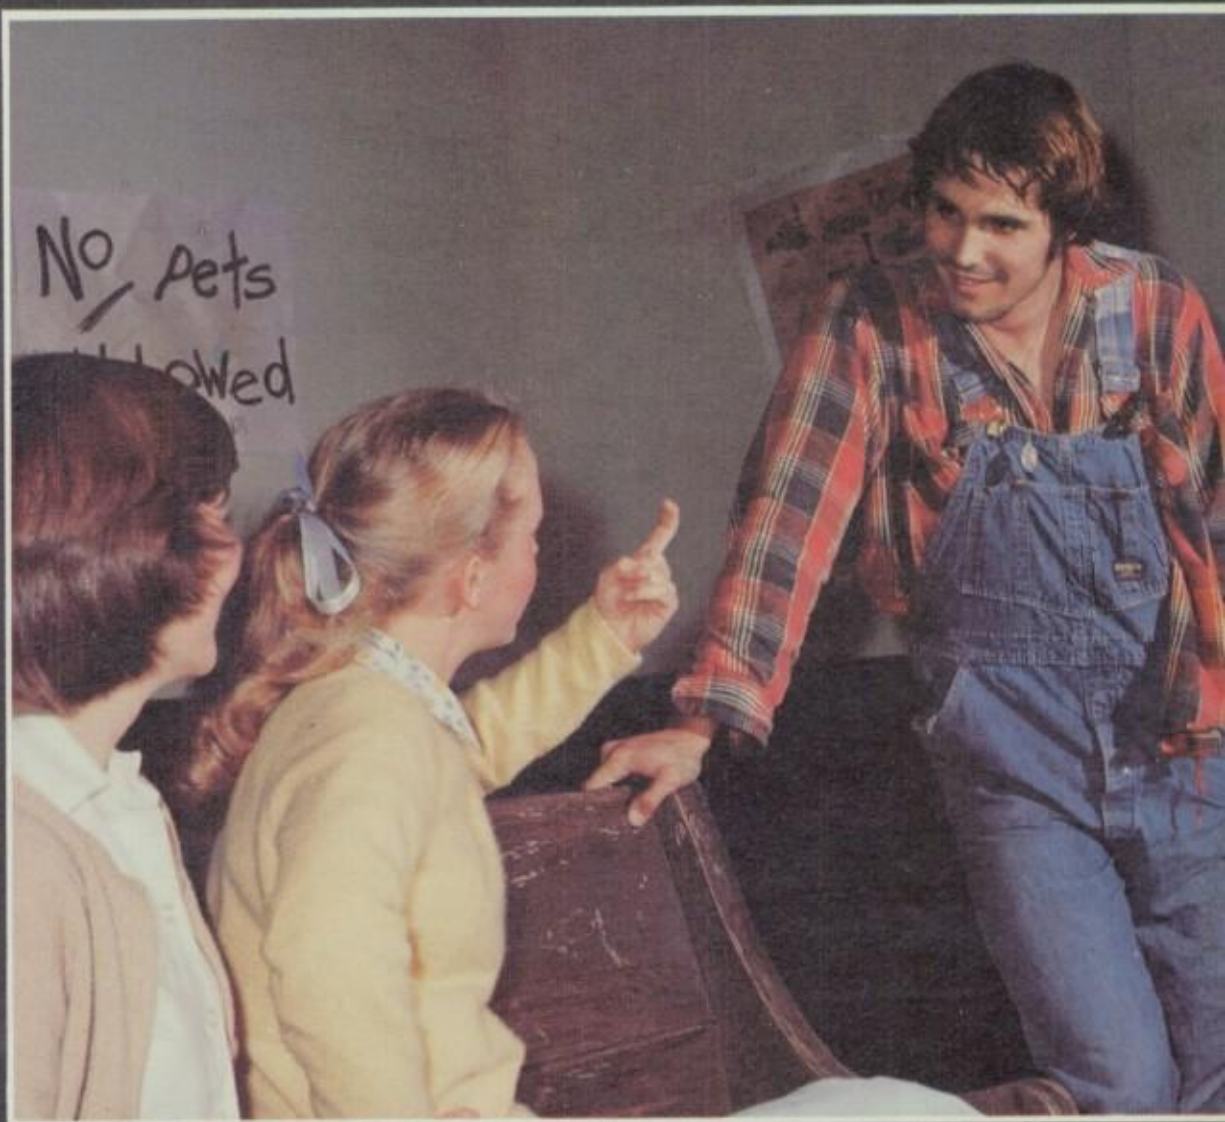

ABOVE—"Let's do the Monster Mash. It was a graveyard smash." Everyone at FCHS had a haunting Halloween.

ABOVE—At another time of masquerading, Brian Scott and Sri Kothandapani rehearse their parts in "Canterbury Tales."

RIGHT—A poor country hick (Jeff Atwood) responds to the motions of a sophisticated city girl (Sarah Fredbeck).

*Friends you'll always remember . . .
giving advice . . . trading secrets
. . . making plans for tomorrow.*

*"You're playing great defense, girls.
Now get in there and give them all that you've got."*

"Wouldn't it be great if we could forget about school and just go on picnics?"

. . . But Friends Will Always . . .

"I love this song. I hope that Mrs. Wilson will let us sing it in the spring concert."

"Hey, look at that fox! Too bad she's going steady."

"So help me! If you guys drop me, some heads are going to roll."

"I don't suppose you'd go out with me this weekend? . . . You would!?"

"Pull hard! I know that we can beat them. All we have to do is get the rope over the line."

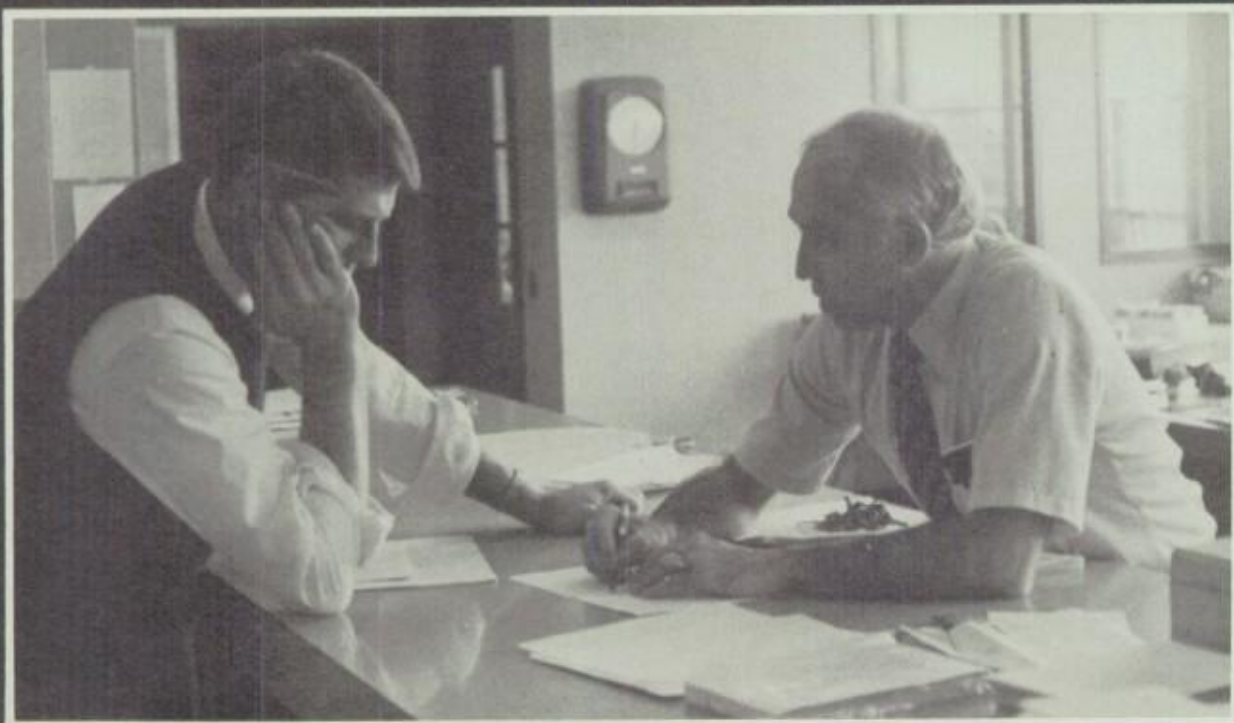

"Boy does that pizza look good! Sure wish I had enough money. HINT! HINT!"

. . Keep Us Together!!

"I need to know who's eligible for basketball. Could you help me, Mr. Server?"

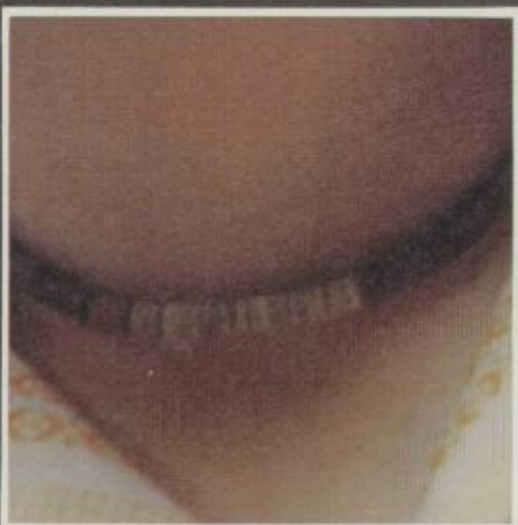

"Hurry! Take my picture before all the blood rushes to my head!"

Crying together . . . working together . . . playing together . . . Friends you'll never forget.

Recipe for a Successful Homecoming: Turn on school spirit to highest degree. Combine 1 "choke 'em" day, 1 "hush" day, 1 "made-in-the-shade" day, 1 "overall" day, 1 "50's" day with approximately 1250 enthused students. Mix in 4 hopeful queen candidates, 4 class banners and 1 rousing pep session. Bake for 4 quarters until a score of 28-0 is reached. Let cool. Ice with 1 queen, Becky Bryant, and 1 nostalgic dance.

"Dance With Me" At Homecoming

ABOVE—Before the snap of the ball, quarterback Larry Phair checks his team's formation.

This here's the ballad about a girl named Kate,
Who asked a boy named Billy to be her date.
It was hard to tell through all of her squawkin',
But Billy soon knew she meant Sadie Hawkins.
The dance was to be on a Friday night,
With a country setting to set the mood right.
Student council sponsored the entire affair,
While music from the Expressions filled the air.
Leo Riera was crowned Lil' Abner,
As couples on the floor began to gather.
It was held six months past September, and sure became a moment to remember.

WHY WE ARE HERE

To a lot of students high school meant homework, books, rules and regulations. But it was much more than that. It was friends that you may never see again and a short four years of fun and experiences that can never be relived. Remember the "unbreakable flask" that broke in Mr. Harmening's class or serving your first detention for being tardy. But one thing was for sure, it was a short time filled with "spur of the moment" things. So let's think back to those times as we take a short trip of last year aboard the "Spirit of 76." If you're quiet you can hear Captain Normal Student preparing for take-off . . . "Hop on! Move to the back please. No first class or coach on this flight; all seats are the same. Don't forget to fasten your seat belts. We're about to take-off for a short trip through the halls of FCHS. I'm your pilot for this flight to the many classes and I would like to remind you to remain in your seats at all times for each stop will be only a brief one. We have a lot of ground to cover and you wouldn't want to be left behind. So sit back, relax, and look at the sights. But first let's take a look at the ones who make it all possible . . . our pit crew."

As we stopped a moment in the social studies area, we discovered classes such as history, geography, civics, family living, sociology, psychology, and economics. Each class acknowledged and experienced the past and present culture of today's world and society. Some classes explored our 200 years of independence and could really feel and describe the "Spirit of 76."

The Perils Of Business

We wondered what that rat-tat-tat down the hallway was. It was the Business Department. One student was overheard talking to himself: "Type-writer ready, paper in, Ko-Rec-Type handy, ready type. Bizness, no that's not right. Business courses, Get out the Ko-Rec-Type. Business courses are bht—Oh no, Business courses are grate. Oh well, what can you expect i'm only im typing I."

ABOVE—Oblivious to everything but typing, Nancy Brant carefully eyes her reading material.

We flew past the offices and down the hallway to the industrial arts room. There we found many students of both sexes busily working on varied projects. One of the most popular subjects at F.C.H.S., industrial arts classes, reached record enrollment in the 1975-76 school year.

Projects Increase Interest

Art Spells Variety

A stop in the art room spelled variety and fun. Mrs. Cox provided an assortment of projects including drawing, painting, 3-dimensional design, and print making. The more advanced classes participated in sculpture, textiles, and ceramics. A favorite project was copper enameling jewelry. Students in groups of four or five designed specific applique banners for a Christmas project.

We often heard art students in the halls discussing their feelings about art.

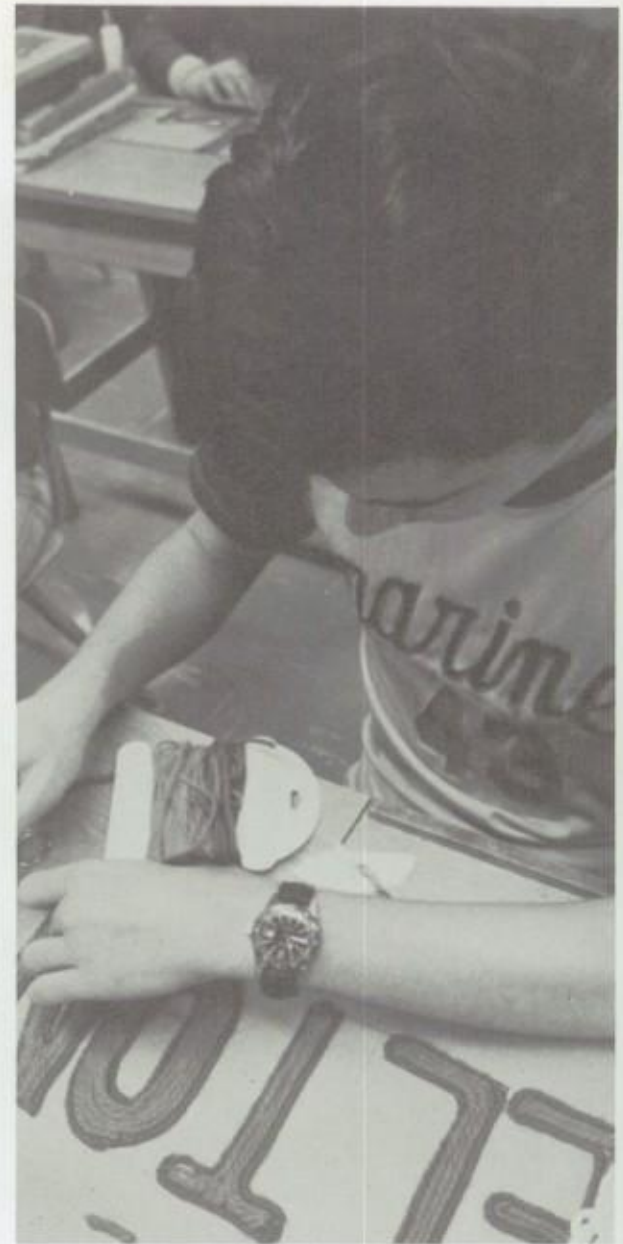

"I enjoy the relaxed atmosphere."

"I think art is very important to our culture."

"It's interesting. It expresses a person's individuality."

"Art's great!"

Learning For Living

The rustling of paper attracted us to the PVE department. Students were reading newspaper want ads and filling out forms for job interviews. With the aid of audio-visual materials, some students were completing individual assignments while others were practicing track and basketball skills for the annual Special Olympics.

We also discovered that the number in the classes was never the same because some students were placed on jobs or studied at Central Nine in the afternoon. Why? To fulfill the purpose of pre-vocational education, which is to prepare students for practical aspects of life after graduation.

Making Patterns For Life

The smell of freshly baked cookies and the sound of whirling sewing machines drew our attention to the Home Economics Department. Home ec students visited such places as day care centers, a nursing home, Gateway Learning Center, and a kindergarten, and some of the classes listened to various speakers.

The child development classes made toys, which were displayed at Spring Open House.

CENTER RIGHT—Following the pattern, Carol Followell completes the first step.

RIGHT—Linda Sullivan and Debbie Pearson practice the basics of child care.

Smash! Bang! Boom! After a crash, we stopped by a health class and learned how to repair our injuries and care for our bodies' needs. During our stay we strolled by a physical education class, where through vigorous exercise and pleasurable sports, we recuperated and developed coordination. If we weren't hurrying to continue our trip, we could have waited until school ended, since both health and physical education programs are held during the summer.

As we dropped in on the Math V class, we discovered a poor over-worked calculator with strange number combinations flashing to signal for help. We found he had bruised buttons, a pain in the on/off switch, a fingernail jammed in the edge of the square root button, a compound fracture of the upper left corner, and an acute case of depression. It seemed his owner left him for a new high class model. That was hitting below the decimal button.

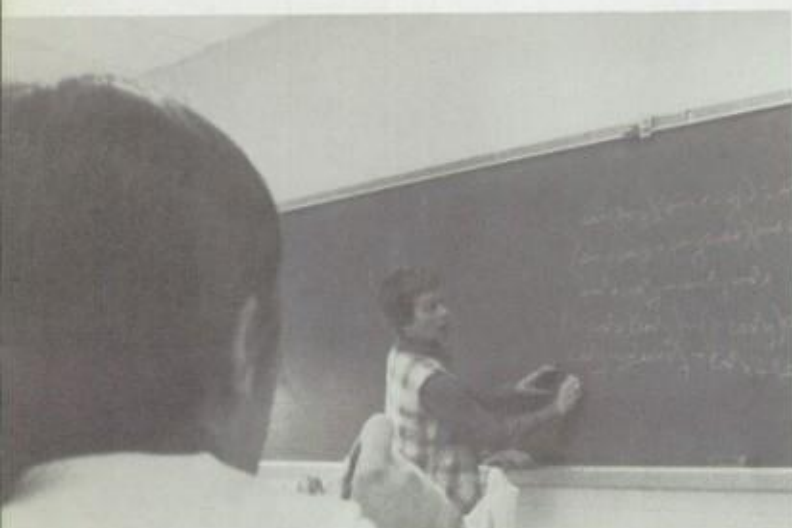

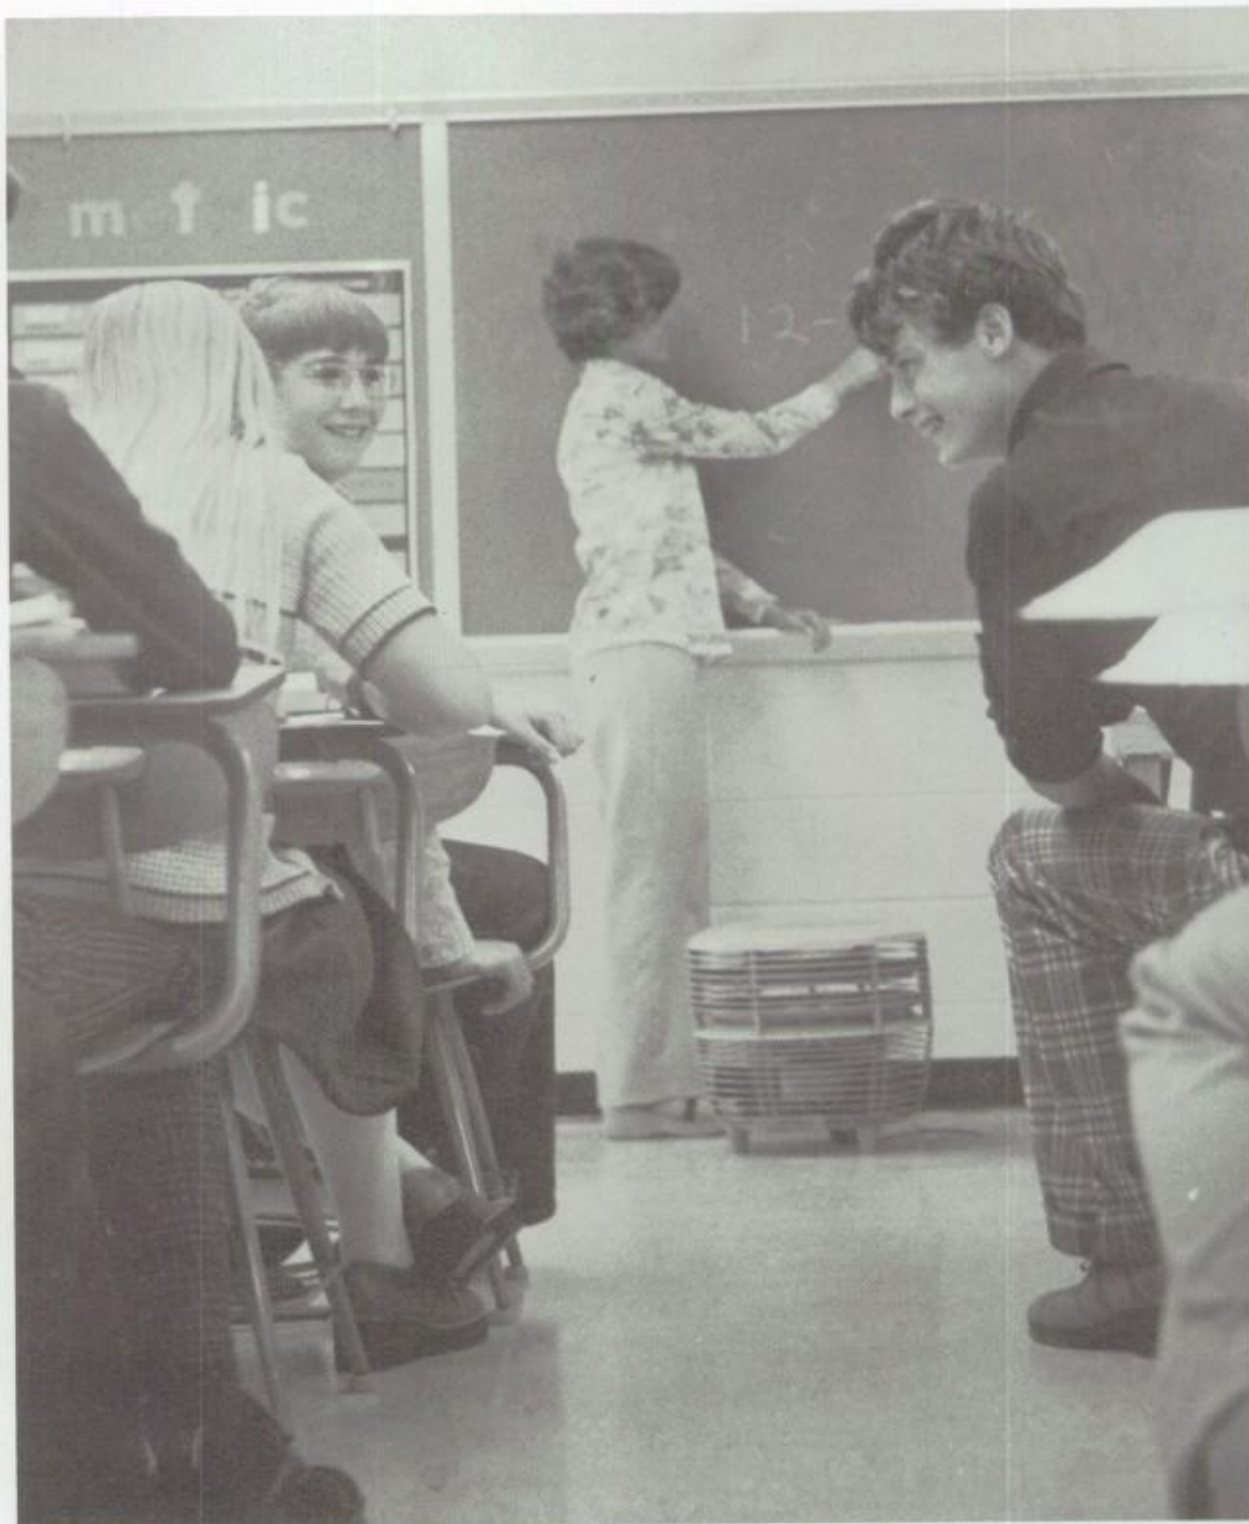

We last heard that he possibly found a new home in the Algebra I, Geometry, Algebra II, Trigonometry, or Senior Math.

Viaje Pequeño

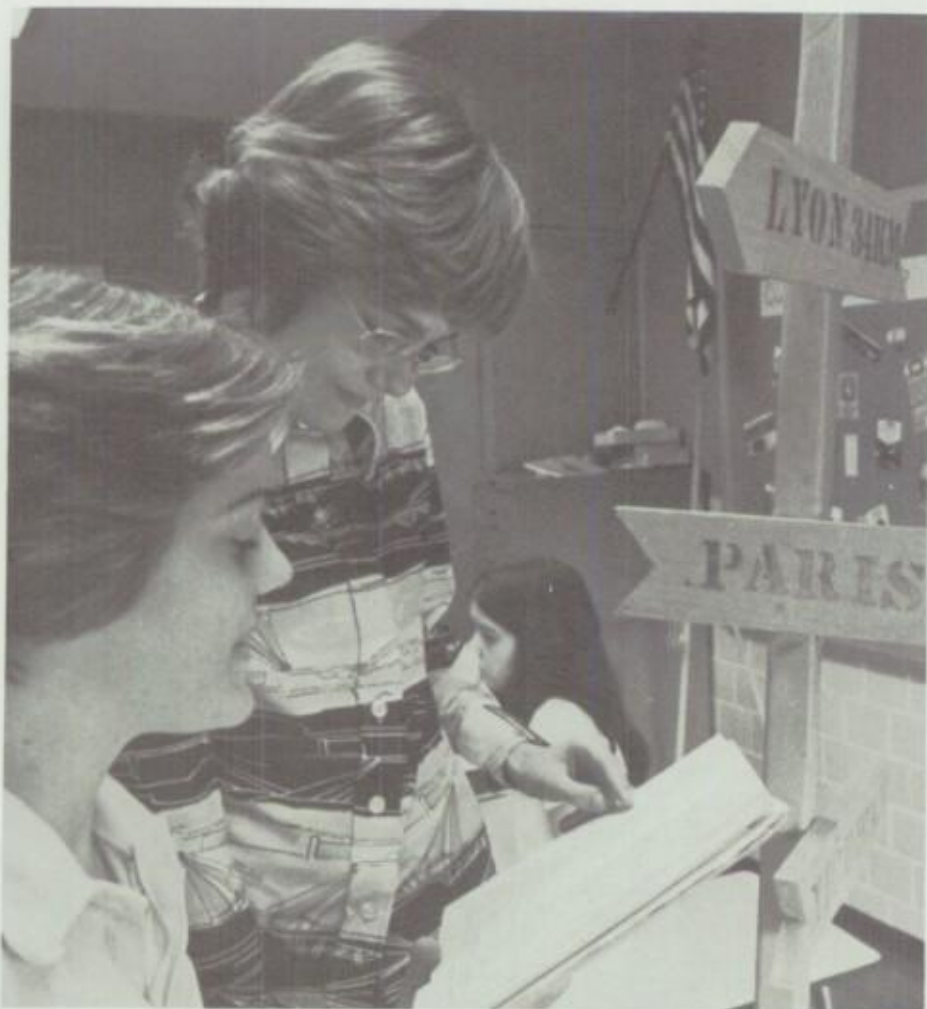

Buenos dias! We wondered where we were. Spain? It was just the F.C.H.S. Foreign Language Department. While traveling in French classes, we saw students working on Christmas cards and recipes. The Spanish students were busy creating their Christmas pinatas.

As we journeyed on to the agriculture classes, we heard someone faintly saying in French, "Au revoir."

Tomorrow's Farmers

Burr . . . After a brief, but cold trip from the main building, we approached a one story building consisting of a classroom, office and workshop. Many had wondered what the inside of the agriculture building looked like.

Noises of hammering . . . drilling . . . sawing . . . and welding prevailed in the workshop. However, we noticed several students missing. The agriculture teacher, Mr. Spurgeon, told us that several students were working at the 10-acre farm behind Webb School practicing skills learned in class.

We could see that agriculture students definitely live and study for the moment but, obviously, prepare for the future.

RIGHT—Keeping the board steady, Jim Church assists Doug Kyle in the assembly of a hay feeder.

We left F.C.H.S. for a few moments and followed U.S. 31 northward for quite some distance. We swooped down past a small nursery and greenhouse, through an auto garage, and into the main building of Central 9. It appeared to be a large office building containing accounting and office machines, drafting boards, data processing computers, and printing and welding shops.

I was told that a large group of students spent half of their school day learning and practicing on-the-job training.

Science Interest Explodes!

We stopped a moment in the science wing and soon heard ourselves saying, "Oh, farout! Would you look at that?" for over half of the F.C.H.S. enrollment had elected to take a science course last year. Biology I and chemistry I classes were full and we saw a new biology and life science teacher, Mr. McClure, had been added to the staff.

As we continued our trip, we passed by the English Department. While spending a moment in senior English class, we saw several students portraying "Canterbury Tales Prologue" characters.

Due to new phase elective programming, sophomores were given the opportunity to choose from a variety of courses such as Development of Short Stories, Exposition and Term Paper, 20th Century Fiction, Drama, and Speech.

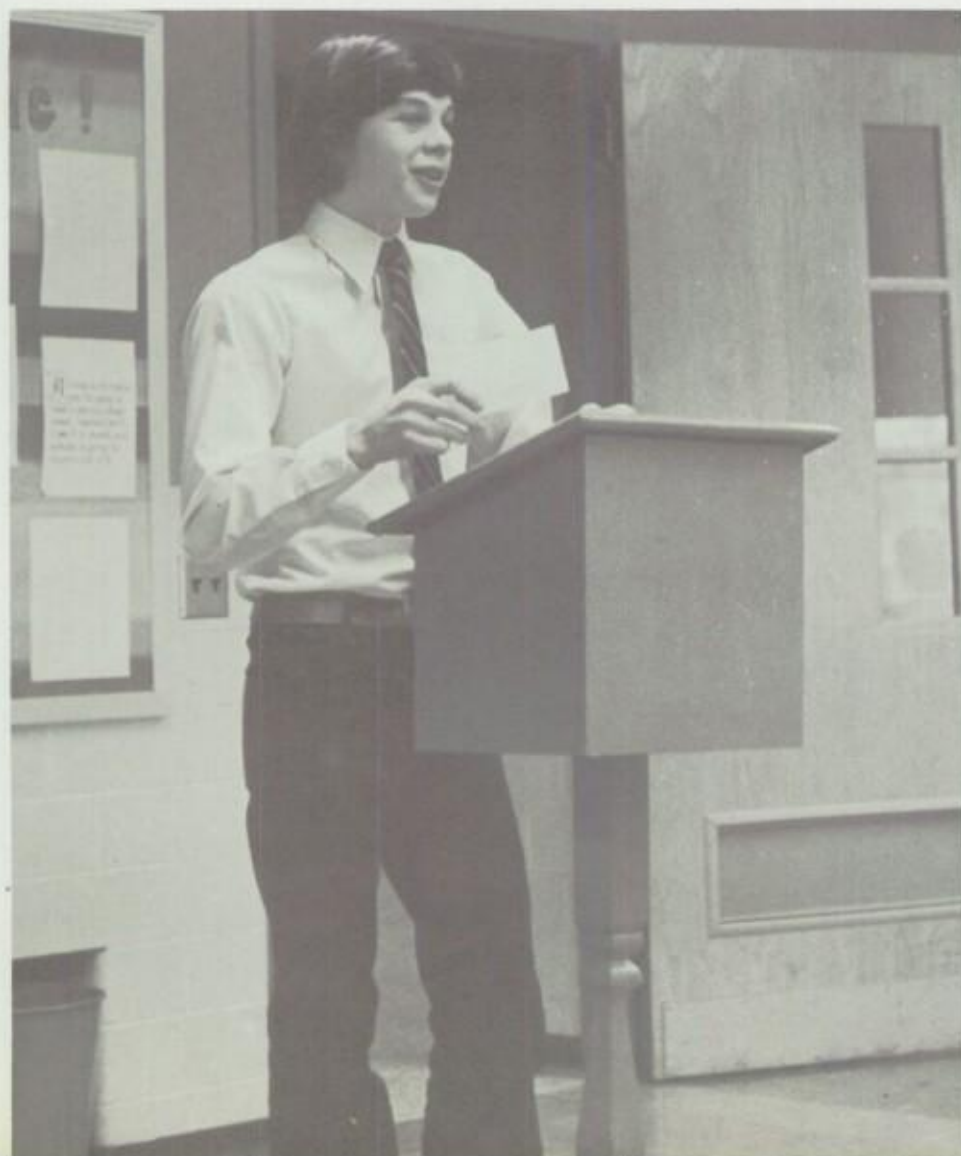

Teachers and students enjoyed the versatility of these classes. The possibility of expanding the format to the junior level was examined for the next year.

Phase Electives Introduced

Song, Dance, And Rhythm For The Moment

The air vibrated as we entered the Choral Department. Heritage Singers, attired in their new patriotic red, white, and blue outfits, practiced for the annual Madrigal Dinner. Chorales busily learned songs for the Spring Concert while Concert Choir performed a tune from "Fiddler on the Roof." Cadet Choir sang a medley from the Fall Concert and Miss Spacke, the new director, was in her office sorting music.

As we left, we realized that each individual's effort works to create the overall harmony necessary to make the sights and sounds of the Choral Department a success.

"Band! Take The Field!"

As we continued our trip through the halls of FCHS, we came upon the Franklin Marching Band. We followed to watch the band as they marched onto the field to the music from the opera "Carmen."

Once on the field, the percussion section performed an arrangement by Mr. James Lucas. The band finished the show with "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," "Chattanooga Choo-Choo," "Hava Nagila," "The Way We Were," and "Ballet-n-Brass."

We noticed two new additions to the band this year. The marching tympani and the newly-designed marching mellophones added great contrast and variety to the show. The shows were a success during the year.

Hearing the CH-CHCH-CH-CHCH of the snare drums coming from the FCHS gym, we came upon the Franklin pep band. Directed by student director Rich Morris, the pep band performed the pre-game, half-time, and post-game shows. They also played at one of the Franklin College's basketball games.

In addition to the pep band activities, members found themselves in the symphonic and concert band as well.

Hard work proved rewarding for these bands. Success came when the two presented the "Sounds to Remember" concert, featuring slides of American History.

In May the marching band traveled to Holland, Michigan's annual tulip festival parade.

Majorettes Boogie Down

We looked next at another important part of the band department, the majorettes.

The majorettes kicked off a good year receiving a second at the Marshall Marching Contest and placing eighth at Jeffersonville.

Back at school the pike corps busily learned their various routines with the new blue and white silk flags. Denise Ransdell and Grace Furrer practiced with sabres for the basketball pre-game shows.

The rifle corps, following a huge success in 1975, started their second year with junior Sue Findley in charge, while senior Cheryl Smith put together the routines for the pike corps.

Majorettes performed during both the football and basketball seasons at halftime and post game.

What's The Score?

Whether it's for the thrill of victory or the agony of defeat, many young women compete in athletics. What is it that compels a girl to strive with her last ounce of strength, to bear losing with unbearable sorrow, to try when her limbs are too weak? It's not enough just to dream that impossible dream. It's the conquering of a great quest, beating that unbeatable foe and reaching that unreachable star that a real woman athlete works and fights for.

HOW WE COPE

"It's club time again. Group I clubs are scheduled to meet today. Boys' Booster Club will meet in the auditorium with Mr. Trueblood. Girls' Booster Club will meet with Miss Netherland in Vandiver Gymnasium . . ."

—Pogue '75

GROUP 1

The girls' pep club almost doubled its membership and chose powder-blue smocks for uniforms. With new rules and a new sponsor, Miss Netherland, the club cheered loudly and clearly in Vandiver Gymnasium.

Wearing blue and white striped hats, the boys' pep club helped to spur the Cubs onto a winning basketball season.

GROUP 2

FBLA sponsored a wide range of activities from providing "goodies" in the teachers' lounge at Christmas to competing in state competition at Ball State.

The year didn't seem long enough for all the FFA activities. Even though the "future farmers" busily competed in livestock, dairy, crop, and soil judging contests, they still found time to sponsor a teachers' breakfast, hog roast, and father-son banquet.

Several speakers told members of science club about the advantages of career in science. The highlight of the year was a trip to the Museum of Science and Industry in Chicago. All senior members were also eligible to attend a second field trip to Eli Lilly's.

Complete with a live band and DJs, Honart sponsored the final basketball mixer. Beginning the year with an initiation tea, the club ended its activities with field trips to the Indianapolis and Cincinnati Museums of Art.

GROUP 3

With Mrs. Hughey as the new sponsor, Latin club upheld its reputation as one of the toughest teams in the "Franklin 100." Other fund raisers for the club included the slave auction and banquet.

The largest language club began the year at an initiation complete with "Mexican Hat Dance." The Spanish club also took a mid-year trip to Gringo's Taco House and ended the year with a formal banquet.

French club sponsored one of the most successful mixers of the year during basketball season. The club enjoyed viewing French films and eating a meal under candlelight at "Chez Jeans."

Celebrating the Bicentennial, members of FHA created a quilt. Other numerous activities included a candy sale, mother-daughter banquet, and a St. Patrick's Day party for 8th graders.

A field trip to Castleton Square highlighted the year for DECA. In order to raise funds for their field trip, the club sponsored a mixer. On honors day, the club presented a scholarship to a senior going to vocational school.

GROUP 4

Co-sponsoring the Sweetheart Dance and presenting the "Hi-Y Follies" helped Hi-Y attain their goals of raising money for two scholarships.

Jr. Hi-Y worked coke concessions and chose queen candidates for the Sweetheart Dance along with other club functions.

The juniors and seniors clashed on the football field as Tri-Hi-Y temporarily split. Back together again, the club sponsored other activities throughout the community and ended the year with the Ideal Lady banquet.

Many Jr. Tri-Hi-Y girls worked overtime serving for other organizations, dinners and dances. They spent an afternoon buying Christmas presents for underprivileged children.

"OTHER THAN CLUB PERIOD"

Several local businesses and a few FCHS teachers had less typing and office work to do thanks to the girls in OEA. The girls spent three hours each day gaining practical office experience.

One student, Isi Hidalgo from Spain, attended FCHS with the help of AFS this year. Sponsoring the "Franklin 100," the club raised enough funds to expand their services abroad.

Several members attended a summer conference in Oklahoma with funds raised by the holly sales of FCA. An annual canoe trip highlighted the year along with church visitations.

With the expansion of girls' sports in IHSAA, girls' FCA met weekly. They shared numerous activities with the boys' FCA including attending "The Hiding Place," participating in weekend conferences, and taking a canoe trip.

National Honor Society held its annual spring banquet initiating several junior and senior members in the organization. Senior members were presented gold tassels to wear on graduation.

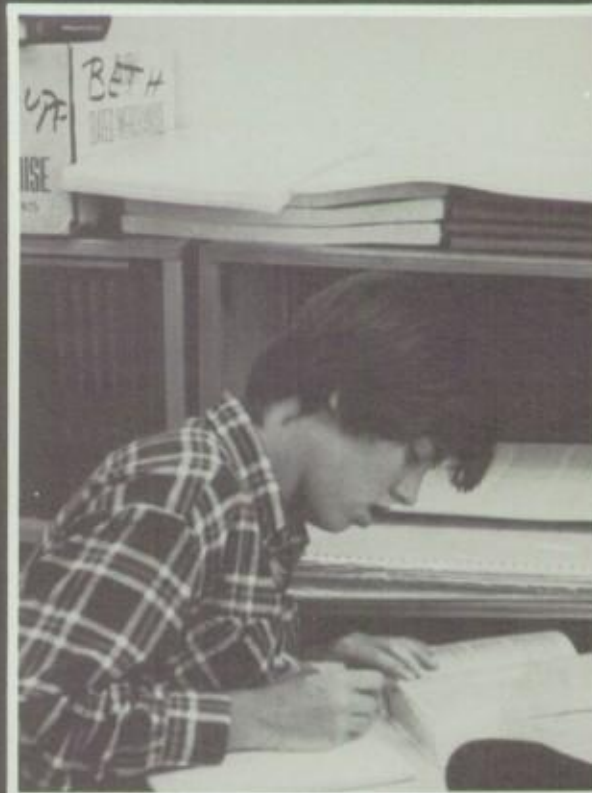

Working with pre-vocational education students, giving a luncheon for retiring FCHS teachers, taking field trips, sponsoring an employer-employee banquet, and participating in national conventions were some of HERO members' worthwhile activities.

Having a female student council president proved to be beneficial. Under the leadership of president Sarah Fredbeck, student council stimulated much action. Newly initiated programs included the choice of music at lunch and a student convocation. Student council also sponsored the Homecoming halftime ceremonies and dance at Camelot Hall. The annual Christmas party for community children was held in December.

Administration Cares For

RIGHT—Dr. Pratt; superintendent.
FAR RIGHT—Mr. Breck; principal.

The Individual Student

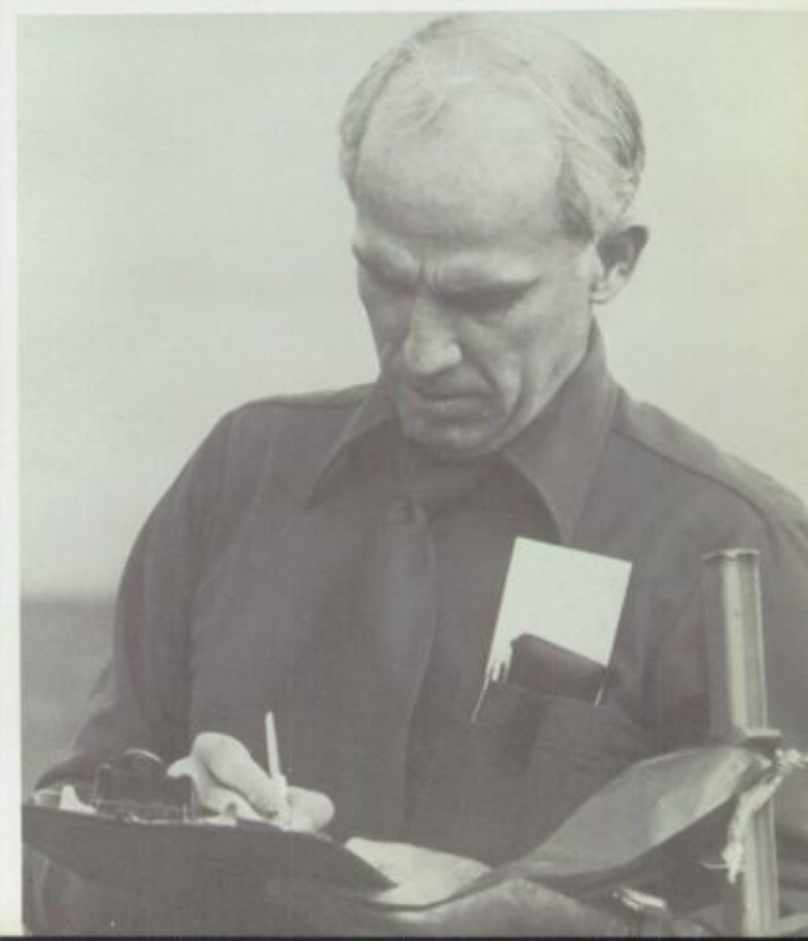

The administration of Franklin schools was a progressing movement, functioning outside the school. The school board met once a month to discuss problems relating to school policies. Functioning within the school, Mr. Breck and his assistants capably carried out decisions and responsibilities, while counselors busily prepared students for future careers.

RIGHT—Mr. Server; athletic director.

ABOVE—Mrs. Ferrel and Mrs. Turner, two of the school cooks.

RIGHT—Mrs. Waltz, the school dietitian.

"Lend A Helping Mop!"

"Are the hot dog buns fresh?"
"Could I have another piece of pizza?"
"Is there going to be any school today?"
"We need a mop in Room 204!"
"Could you fix the last light in the north hall?"

These were just a few of the questions that our janitors, cooks and secretaries answered daily. They did many jobs from typing our schedules to cooking our meals and cleaning our floors. A great big THANK YOU should go to the F. C. H. S. staff—the ones behind the scenes.

LEFT—Mrs. Catt, the school nurse.

When Thinking Back . . .

LEFT--Shutting out the world and cramming for finals is a common thing for Martha Streightoff after nearly completing four years of high school.

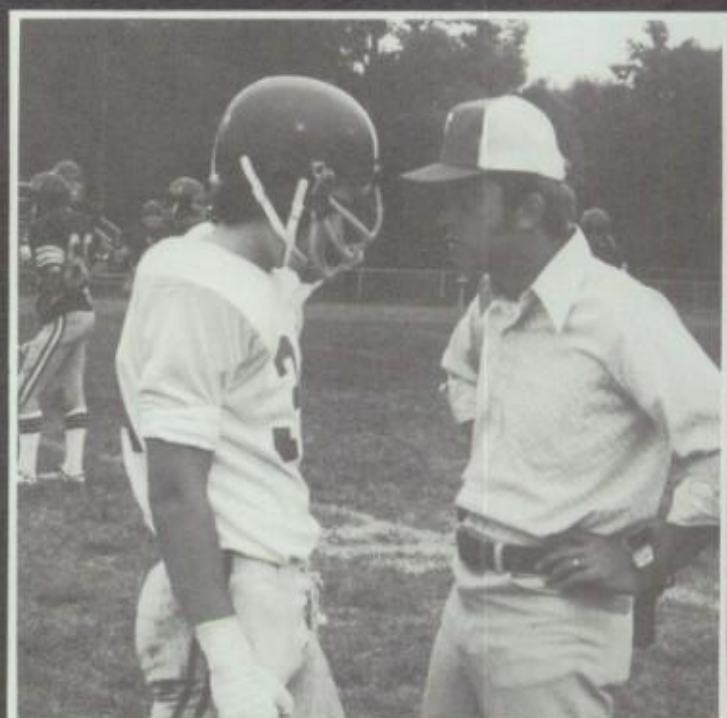

BELOW--It takes more than twelve players and a court to make a basketball team. It also takes strategy and Mr. Harmening's loud voice.

BELOW--Once a year the tables are turned as junior boys, Steve Cody, Greg Kitchens, Jeff Atwood, and Tim Thomas cheer the girls on the gridiron.

We Lived For Each Day And . . .

Another summer begins; another school year ends. The long-awaited day has finally arrived. No more waking-up early, rushing to classes, sitting through lectures, doing homework, and going through the same old day-after-day routine. Never thought that I would make it out! I can hardly wait to start making all that money. I can buy anything, go anywhere on any night that I please and I can even eat lunch at McDonald's every day if I want. Won't have to worry about buying tickets for football games or spending money on dances either. Yeh, it'll be just me, my job, and my money. Working nine hours a day won't be too bad. I'll find plenty of things to do. Who needs mixers or trackmeets? Sure there'll be some friends that I may never see again, but I'll make new ones in my spare time if I'm not busy cooking and doing the laundry. My best friend's going to college but we'll write. Yeh, we sure did some crazy things back at FCHS. I remember one time when we . . . Funny . . . I think I miss it already. If only I could live those moments over."

ABOVE--Dissecting a fetal pig, Randy Thompson finds that there's a lot more to biology than just books and lectures.

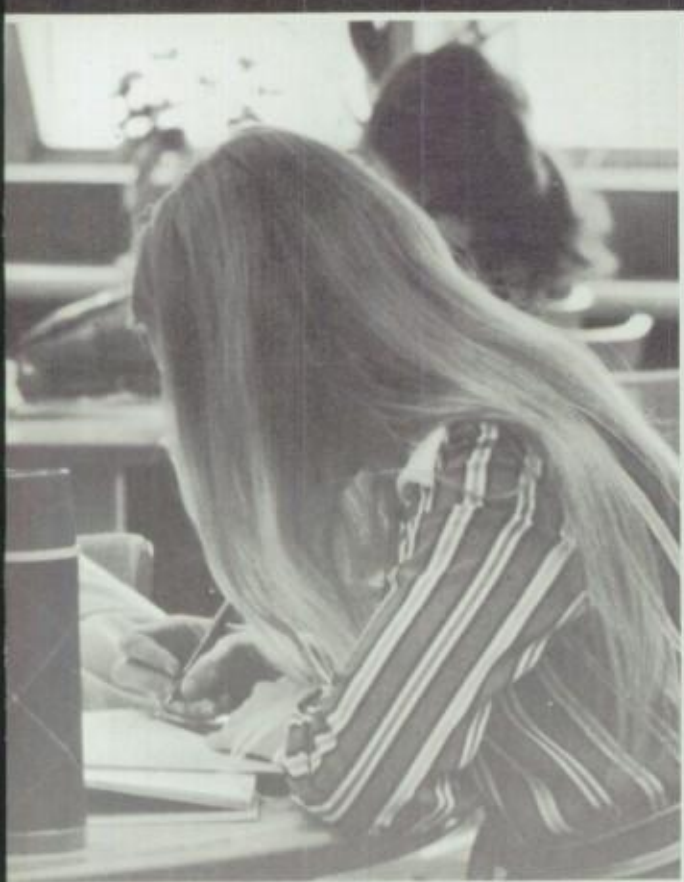

ABOVE RIGHT--It only happens once in a lifetime. The pep clubs honored Wonder Cub, Fuzzy Vandiver, as he was elected to the Basketball Hall of Fame.

CENTER LEFT--The staff generated spirit through their country skit presented at the Homecoming pep session.

CENTER RIGHT--Mr. Heminger reminds Brad Kitchens that you can't always get what you want even if it is a first down.

. . . Awaited Tomorrow's Moments!!

"Thanks For The Memories"

"Well, this is the end of the book. Now that you've looked through it, don't think that this yearbook is like every other one that comes along. This book is much more than just another pretty face (cover)! It can be used for a doorstop, a prop to keep the table from wobbling, or even a crusher for prom flowers.

In the beginning each staff member was required to memorize our motto, "survival of the fittest" or "watch out for Chupp when pages are late." But as the year progressed, we all became one big happy family. Mrs. Lake, our advisor, settled all family disputes; for when tempers were hot, she kept a cool head even if she was in the minority.

Besides the staff many others contributed to the 1976 KITE. Special thanks go to the Franklin Fire Department and their new snorkle, to Frank Nash of Nash Studio who bravely rose on the snorkle for an aerial shot, to Gordon Chandler who assisted during the "deadline jams," to Hoot Gibson of National Studios, to the Electron staff, and to our Newsfoto representative, Dick Kennard. Last but not least, Mr. Breck, Mr. Turner, and Mr. Pogue for sympathizing with our problems and Mr. Self and Mr. Hamlin for understanding my occasional tardiness.

Now that every one has been thanked, our story has finally ended. You can put the book on the shelf but in years to come, while the world passes you by in your rocking chair, pull out the 1976 KITE, dust it off, thumb through the pages, and remember what it was like to . . . LIVE FOR THE MOMENT AT FCHS."

Thanks Again

Beth Chupp

Mary,
a really nice girl I have enjoyed knowing. Good luck in the future with everything you attempt. Don't forget the slumber parties & the "heavy petting"
(we thought it was cocoa).
